Planning Guide for Fiscal Years 2017/18 & 2018/19

In January 2018, UC Merced transitioned to a composite method for the assessment of fringe benefit costs. This move to composite benefit rates is a positive step forward in strengthening UC Merced's financial management by providing a predictable means to expense and project employee fringe benefit costs.

To assist in the budget planning process when budgeting for CBRs on both Institutional and Sponsored funds, the following guide has been created. As updates are received from UCOP regarding our proposed rates, this document will be amended.

Composite Benefit Rates by Benefit Type

Composite Benefit Rates are standard benefit rates developed each fiscal year and are used for business transactions containing a fringe benefit component. In the table below, please find the rate component details for the approved FY2017/18 & FY2018/19 CBRs. These rates have been computed to minimize fund variances, while ensuring simplicity and compliance with the UC Systemwide CBR model.

Employee Group Identification

With the UC Systemwide model, Composite Benefit Rates (CBR) are assessed on employee salaries by looking at an employee's job code, earn code, benefits-eligibility, and Fair-Labor Standards Act designation. To easily identify the rate that an employee will be assessed benefits at, the matrix below has been provided. Starting with Step #1, please work through the matrix on the next page to identify the appropriate group that corresponds with the employee.

Exclusions from Composite Benefit Rates

Some fringe costs that carry special costing circumstances are excluded from the Composite Benefits Rate calculation and should continue to be budgeted and expensed by direct charging the funding sources. In the table below, the excluded fringe costs have been identified to ensure the appropriate budgeting measures.

Earn Codes

As these earn codes represent fringe benefits that are currently treated as "salaries", they are excluded from the CBR calculation and should be budgeted accordingly.
